CDM Opens New Branch Office in Richardson, Texas

CDM Electronics today announced the opening of their new Richardson, Texas facility. The new office now serves as CDM's Midwest and Great Plains regional operating hub from which specialized sales, engineering and technical support are provided to CDM customers along with processing DOD (Department of Defense) and Defense Supply Center Columbus (DSCC) contracts. CDM's new facility is much larger than their former Plano, TX office, and is comprised of private offices, a fully staffed customer service department and conference center. Outfitted with the latest generation of computers, communications, and audio video equipment, the space is designed to maximize productivity and enhance the CDM customer experience. "Moving to a larger, state-of-the-art facility in Richardson underscores our commitment to providing local support and service to our existing customer base, along with being prepared for new, future programs," stated Bill Almon, CDM's Vice President of Sales and Marketing. CDM has a comprehensive offering of interconnect products and Engineered Cable Assembly Solutions (ECAS) for the military, aerospace, commercial, telecom, medical, industrial automation and robotics sectors. The facility is located at 750 International Parkway, Suite 130, Richardson, TX.
